

Roxbury's Dyrness is named 'Builder of the Year'

ROXBURY TWP. – Donald J. Dyrness, owner of Main Street Custom Homes & Remodeling, LLC (MSCH&R), was named 2020 Builder of the Year by the Metropolitan Builders & Contractors Association of New Jersey (MetroBCA).

The award was presented to Dyrness during MetroBCA's Installation of 2021 Officers & Directors held virtually this year via ZOOM on Thursday, Dec. 10, according to a press release.

According to the organization, this award is bestowed each year to recognize one MetroBCA builder member out of approximately 100 contenders who can always be counted on to help further the goals and objectives of the building industry.

"I am passionate about building beautiful homes and am honored to be recognized by my peers, the leaders in the New Jersey home building industry," said Dyrness, a lifetime township resident.

This past July, Dyrness was invited by Michael Stanzilis, vice president of Membership and Business Development of the Morris County Chamber of Commerce, to participate in the Morris County COVID-19 Recovery Task Force. Stanzilis is also the mayor of Mount Arlington.

DONALD DYRNNESS

This group of leaders from various segments of Morris County including government, health, education, labor, social services, and others was formed to share ideas and develop strategies to help local businesses and the community recover from the economic effects of the current health crisis.

Dyrness says he became involved in the construction industry at an early age, helping his father Dan Dyrness on job sites and learning the trade from the ground up. Upon earning his degree in chemical engineering, he returned to his roots, building a career constructing custom homes, additions and remodeling projects for over 30 years.
